

RANDOLPH W. WALTON

Progressive Candidate For Congressman-at-Large From Ohio.

Randolph W. Walton, candidate of the Progressive party for the office of Congressman-at-Large from Ohio is a practicing attorney of Columbus. Born at Woodsfield, Monroe county, Ohio, October 15th, 1870, his boyhood was spent there and at Clarington. In the same county, where his family went in 1877. His father was Doctor William Walton, late surgeon of the Twenty-fifth O. V. V. I., and who up to November, 1896, the time of his death, was a leading physician and surgeon of Eastern Ohio.

Walton's early education was gained in the public schools of Clarington and as "devil" and typesetter in the office of the Clarington Independent. While employed in the printing office, he read medicine at night, but the death of his father caused him to abandon that study. In July, 1893, he came to Columbus. He was appointed by Governor Nash as Corresponding Clerk, and during the last term also served as Executive Clerk, was reappointed Corresponding Clerk by Governor Herrick, and served for a short time as Commission Clerk, and for the balance of the term as Executive Clerk to Governor Harris.

During the time he was in the office of Governor Nash, Walton studied law at night, and was admitted to the bar in December, 1901.

Walton was one of the early Progressives of Ohio. In June, 1902, during a contest for the Congressional nomination in the Twelfth District, he declared against the delegate convention system, and for a direct, popular vote primary for the nomination of candidates for office. In 1908, he was opposed to the nomination of Judge Taft. The day after the Republican National Convention of this year adjourned, Walton in an interview announced that he was still for Roosevelt, that there would be a Progressive Party formed and that he would join it.

Walton has quite a record and reputation as a public speaker, and during the past fifteen years has spoken in all sections of the state; in 1900 made several addresses in Illinois; and in Indiana in 1908.

He is a life member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and Past Exalted Ruler of Columbus Lodge; and was one year a member of the Grand Lodge Ritual Committee; a member of Magnolia Lodge of Masons, Governor Dennison Camp, Sons of Veterans, and Ohio Camp, Modern Woodmen of America, of Columbus; and a life member of the Jungbome Athletic and Physical Culture Club of New Lexington, Ohio.

In June, 1901, Mr. Walton was married to Miss Sidney M. Myers, of Steubenville, Ohio, and they reside at 1550 Hawthorne street, Columbus. Mr. Walton stands squarely upon the national and state platforms of the Progressive Party; believes that the lobby evil should be abolished, and that much could be done toward that end by taking the privilege of the floor from "ex-members," many of whom after their terms become the highly paid agents of the selfish interests; is for the early restoration of the Merchant Marine, but opposed to subsidies; and believes that the governments of our nation, states and cities, by sensible and simple economy, could be conducted for at least one-third of the present cost. He also believes that too much consideration in legislation has been given to the lobby representing "big fellows," and too little attention paid to the wishes and welfare of the rank and file who are represented only by their representatives, who all too frequently are their misrepresentatives.

JUDGE R. M. WANAMAKER

Progressive Candidate For Judge of Ohio Supreme Court.

Born August 2, 1869, on a farm in Jackson township, Mahoning county, Ohio. Attended district school of that township until 1882, when, by working at hay baling and in a flax mill, he earned enough money to attend the Ohio Northern University at Ada, taking a short teachers' course to prepare himself for district school teaching. Taught in Jackson township for several years, alternating between teaching and attending at Ada as funds permitted up to 1888. He served three years as principal of the West Side schools of Lima, O. While there he began the study of law, and spent two years later in the Law Department at Ada from 1891 to 1893, being admitted to practice in March of the latter year.

Located at Akron, O., October 1st, 1893, and began the practice of law with W. E. Young under the firm name of Young & Wanamaker.

In 1895 was elected Prosecuting Attorney and re-elected in 1898. His term as prosecutor was marked by a large number of heavy criminal cases especially those connected with the Akron riot in August, 1900. Out of that riot there were thirty-five convictions, half of whom were sentenced to the Ohio Penitentiary, the first successfully prosecuted riot in Ohio. His chief fight as prosecutor was in defiance of the political machine of the county, who insisted upon running his office, and failing in such, afterwards tried to defeat him for a second term.

Was elected to the Common Pleas Bench over the opposition of the local machine in 1905, and re-elected in 1910. His campaign for the bench was largely for judicial reform in the trial of cases, especially the dispatch of business and reduction of expense. For over six years he has been applying his individual views as far as permissible under existing law to reforming the trial of cases. Short cuts to justice have been adopted, wherever possible, with a fearlessness and fairness that has somewhat astonished the bar. The longest civil case tried before him has occupied but three days and but two criminal cases have exceeded that.

He has always been independent in thought and progressive in action. He has had the support of almost as many Democrats as Republicans in his public service; was re-elected by over 2,600 plurality in his subdivision, which was carried by Governor Harmon at same election by 5,000.

He ardently believes in a non-partisan judiciary and is conducting a strictly non-partisan campaign for the Supreme Bench.

He is vigorously opposed to those technicalities and formalities of the law that delay and defeat justice.

He is known on the bench among lawyers and laymen as being eminently fair and without favorites in the trial of cases, and, being a young man himself, he is naturally helpful and considerate to the younger members of the bar.

His wife, Fanny Snow Wanamaker, son and daughter, comprise his family.

He is a member of the K. P., I. O. O. F., B. P. O. E., K. O. T. M., M. W. A., and some other fraternal orders.

ARTHUR L. GARFORD

Progressive Candidate For Governor of Buckeye State.

Arthur L. Garford of Elyria, Progressive candidate for governor, is a typical successful American business man. He was born on a farm and at the age of 16 years graduated from the Elyria public schools, that being in 1875. Immediately thereafter he became bookkeeper in a large importing house in Cleveland and later was successively bookkeeper, teller and cashier in an Elyria bank, the largest in the county. At the outset of the bicycle "craze" he invented a saddle and made a fortune in that business, but later lost it through the amalgamation of his business with the American Bicycle company, he being one of the many victims of that unfortunate combination. He then became one of the pioneers in the automobile business, where he recuperated his finances and until recently owned the controlling interest in the Garford plant in Elyria.

Until the bosses overruled the majority of the Republican voters of the country he was an ardent supporter of the party of Lincoln. He twice refused the nomination at the hands of the Republicans of the state and was unanimously chosen by the Progressives. "The man above the dollar" is Garford's slogan in the campaign.

ROBERT R. NEVIN

Progressive Candidate For Attorney General of Ohio.

Robert R. Nevin, candidate of the Ohio Progressives for Attorney General, was born at Dayton, O., Aug. 2, 1875. He is a son of Robert M. Nevin, for six years congressman from the Third Ohio district.

Robert R. Nevin went through public schools of Dayton, graduating from high school in 1894. Attended Ohio State University and then Cincinnati Law school, and was admitted to the bar in March, 1898. In May, 1898, he enlisted as a private in the First Ohio cavalry, and served in the Spanish war with that regiment until July, when he was appointed a second lieutenant in the regular army by President McKinley.

He was assigned to the Twenty-second United States Infantry and staid with that regiment until 1899, when he resigned to return home and practice law in firm with father. In 1905 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Montgomery county, occupying that position for three years.

He is a thirty-second degree Mason, Odd Fellow, K. P., Elk and member Spanish War Veterans' association. For many years he was a Republican county committeeman, as a member and chairman, and later served on the state executive committee. At the present time he is a member of the state central committee of the Third district, Progressive party.

Progressive Candidate For Secretary of State of Ohio.

John L. Sullivan of East Liverpool, the Progressive candidate for Secretary of State, probably enjoys the most unique distinction of any man who ever ran for a public office in Ohio. He was unanimously nominated by two state conventions within the brief space of a few week's time, first being thus honored by the Republicans of Ohio and later by the Progressives. He withdrew from the Republican ticket because of not being in sympathy with the reactionary tendencies of that party or in harmony with the management of its affairs in the state and nation. He made the move without the suggestion, or even the knowledge, of either side, and for the simple reason that he felt he could not be honest with himself and appear in a dual role politically during the campaign.

In the pre-primary and convention fight, which ended with the fraudulent nomination of Mr. Taft, Mr. Sullivan was for Colonel Roosevelt, and never made any attempt to disguise his preference. Way last winter, in announcing his candidacy for Secretary of State, he promulgated a progressive platform. An editor of the East Liverpool Review, he has for the past two years been writing and publishing progressive editorials, which were the very antithesis of the platform utterances of the Republican party. For this reason he could not have consistently remained on the Republican ticket and taken an active part in the campaign.

John L. Sullivan has been prominent in politics for many years. He was postmaster of his former home town of St. Marys for a long time, but he gained special prominence as the supervisor of public printing of the state of Ohio from 1908 to 1910, inclusive. In that capacity he enlisted public notice and won distinction because of the methods he introduced in that department of the state government. The department of printing had been brought into disrepute by the slipshod and dishonest methods of his predecessors. Soon after his induction into office Mr. Sullivan introduced a system of accounting which not only brought order out of chaos, but made Mr. Sullivan the recipient of golden opinions among men of all parties. The Democratic governor, Judson Harmon, was so pleased with Mr. Sullivan's work that he gave out the following statement to the newspapers:

"I wish to commend the satisfactory manner in which Mr. Sullivan has conducted his department. Whether a man is a Republican or a Democrat, he should have credit for his work, if deserving of the same."

The bi-partisan legislative probe committee, which sent one former state printer to the penitentiary and bitterly criticized others, paid Mr. Sullivan the following compliment: "Under the administration of John L. Sullivan your committee find that the affairs of said office have been conducted in clean, business-like manner by the said Mr. Sullivan."

Mr. Sullivan is an active member of Columbus Typographical Union No. 5, and for a number of years has been closely allied with the interests of organized labor. His candidacy has been endorsed by the union printers, and he will be supported generally by the craftsmen throughout the state. He supported labor proposals in the new constitution, and in this manner incurred the displeasure of the stand-pat Republicans, who were universally arrayed against all the progressive proposals in the new fundamental law of the state.

As a past grand master of the Odd Fellows, Mr. Sullivan has an extensive acquaintance in fraternal circles. He is also a Master Mason, a Knight of Pythias and Woodman.
